DEATH OF P. G. MASTER JAMES A. J. BOHEN.
—Sad, indeed, is the news of the death of our beloved friend and brother. We knew him well, and as our relations of acquaintance approached intimacy we saw more and more in his life and character to love and reverence. Few men have ever attained to that degree of gaining the entire confidence of his fellow-men at so early a period of their lives. Long will his noble virtues rest in the memories of all who knew him. We gather the following particulars of the last moments of this good man from the Alta of the 28th May:

The Odd Fellow's Hall, on Montgomery street, is draped in mourning, and an eager stream of citizens are constantly passing into the building to take a last gaze at the features of Past Grand Master James A. J. Bohen, whose body lies in state at Coe's Hall. At one time, Deputy Superintendent of Public Streets, and Vice President of the Dutch Flat Association. But it was principally as a member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows that he was prominently known to the public. Beginning as an initiate of Yerba Buena Lodge, No. 15, fourteen years ago, he held almost every position in the gift of the Order. As Noble Grand of his Lodge, as Grand Master of the State, as a Representative in the Grand Lodge of the United States, he had ever distinguished himself, and won in a remarkable degree the respect and confidence of his brethren. In the Patriarchal branch of the Order he was not less honored and esteemed. He had served as the chief officer of Golden Gate Encampment No. 1, and as Grand Patriarch of the State. For several years previous to his death he had been President of the Odd Fellow's Hall Association. Perhaps, in the history of the Order, in its teachings and secret work, he was the brightest and most thoroughly posted Odd Fellow on this coast, and his decisions and authority carried a weight equal to those of any other officer. Nor was it alone in the capacity of an officer that the admirable character of Past Grand Master Bohen was conspicuous. In his daily walk and conduct, his generosity, his disinterestedness, his efforts to aid others, the goodness of his heart and the strength and solidity of his judgment, were eminently marked. During his long and painful illness, washing away, day by day, with a disease terrible as incursions, scarcely a complaint escaped him, and his mind seemed occupied in devising schemes to benefit others. On last Thursday evening, word was brought to Yerba Buena Lodge that brother Bohen was dying. The Lodge was just opening, and it was with difficulty the members could be kept together so as to adjourn in an orderly manner. The residence of the deceased was visited by an eager crowd of friends, some of whom made their way into the chamber where the sick brother lay. Waking from a slumber, which painfully resembled death, he inquired the reason of the presence of so many brethren. Being told that they came to see him and learn his condition, he expressed his gratification, as he wished to speak with them before his death. Having assembled his brothers around his bedside, he proceeded to address them in words that will never be forgotten by those who heard him. He spoke of his approaching death with calmness and satisfaction, full of hope and confidence of a blissful hereafter, and in perfect peace with the world. He expected them to live moral and religious lives; to be charitable, to be generous, to be just. The ghastly looks of the Grand Master, the strained and feeble voice, the conviction of the speaker spoke in the anti-chamber of Death, gave to his words a power and significance beyond description. But he is gone, and his brethren mourn his loss as men seldom mourn except for a dear relative.

WASHINGTON'S WEAKNESSES.—In an address delivered at Delaware, Ohio, February 22d, Don Platt said: "No man has suffered more in the hands of the standard historians than George Washington. They have passed him beyond popular understanding and popular sympathy. He has ceased to become a man and become a god. I was never more startled than once when I came unexpectedly upon a pamphlet written and published by Tom Paine, attacking George Washington. It was a powerful denunciation of the Father of his Country by that brutal, coarse, yet able writer. While rejecting the summing up of the celebrated infidel, the mere fact that the great Virginia Colonel could thus be assailed by a contemporary awakened the suspicion that we did not know George Washington. I investigated for myself, and discovered that George Washington had been born of woman; that he had once been young, and danced with the girls, and rode after the fox; that he was vain in his temper, proud of his horse, passionate in his temper, aristocratic in his feelings. I learned that he bowed in a dignified manner with his hands behind him, to his guests at levees, and when recommended by Tom Jefferson, who suggested hand-shaking, he replied, 'Shake hands! No sir! I should catch the itch!' I remember being told by my grandfather, old Col. Platt, of Boone county, Kentucky, who was wounded at Brandywine, that he happened to be present when Washington met his army in full retreat, and then the great commander swore terribly. In a word, I learned to love the man for his weaknesses, as I admired him for his strength. As he ceased to be impassible, and grew to be human, my heart went out in sympathy for his struggles and admiration for his success."

A QUEER CHICK.—Mr. V. Garrigus, who resides near Gilroy, has a live chicken, now three weeks old, that has four legs, each with the full complement of toes, etc. The chick legs grow out sideways-like, somewhat like the legs of a frog. The chick seems to have no particular use for these legs at present; but we imagine it will, some day, be capable of doing some responsible scratching among the garden "weeds" and things. "MISSION OF THE LOCAL PRESS."—Under this head the ponderous Alta reads the country papers a homily. It takes it for granted that the only object of any paper in the State out of San Francisco, is to furnish local items for the Alta's columns. And it proceeds to pass judgment and condemn to utter disgrace all who fail to contribute their full share to its rapacious maw. After giving all just force to the Alta's notion of our duty, and conceiving that it is the business of the country papers to reveal the resources of their region we would remind our astute grandame that we have readers that depend solely upon our columns for news of the outer world, a general newspaper reading. Thus we have other, if not higher duties than reporting the local news. As to "didactic plagiarisms upon the writings of able men," and the consequent "public injury," the Alta need not fear that any Union paper will filch its maudlin platitudes of truculency to Andrew Johnson, or the People's party. There are some local papers that are not always throwing up dust and crying "great is conservatism" and "great is Mammon." The Dramatic Chronicle, much higher authority, commends the Alta's article and closes as follows:

"Let the country papers cultivate a less ambitious spirit and stop writing essays. When they want anything of that sort, they can obtain a superior article to any they can manufacture by quoting from the great metropolitan journals such as the Chronicle or the Alta. What we want of them is local information. We will do all the general fancy and ornamental work is needed."

FATAL ACCIDENT.—On Wednesday evening last about five o'clock, one of those terrible and fatal accidents to which our district has been so fearfully doomed occurred in the Waukegan claim, owned by the Staple Brothers. About the time mentioned, crowds might have been seen hurrying to the claim just back of town on the West. News had been brought that Harry Lilly, an old citizen of this place and employed in the claim above named had been washed down the sluices. It appears that a cave of the bank against which he was holding the pipe, occurred; he saw the cave and warned Mr. Staples, who was near him, to get out of the way, which he did by jumping from the sluices, while Lilly, instead of doing the same got into them and was washed down a considerable way with the debris of the cave. When found, he was sitting up on the side of the flume, dead. He was a Russian by birth, about thirty-five years old, and had been in California a number of years. He was buried on Thursday by the Pacific Guard of this place, an organization he had been a member of for two or three years. His remains were followed to the grave by a large concourse of citizens, most of whom mourned the loss of a good and worthy man.

ANOTHER FAILURE.—The claim of Messrs. Carr, Moore and Harriman, situated near Gold Run, and about three miles from this place was cleaned up on Wednesday last after a run of nineteen days, four men working and realized the sum of two thousand, seven hundred and twenty dollars. Why our people will continue to waste their sweetness upon chimeras—that's a new name for it—when there are good diggings elsewhere, is somewhat surprising. But then there is no accounting for tastes.

The Home Ticket Company also near Gold Run, cleaned up this week, and obtained $2,008. This claim is under the immediate supervision of Captain "Yank," (who, by the by, has better clothes than anybody) and is one of the best paying claims in the vicinity.

The Harkness claim, located near Canyon Creek, cleaned up on Wednesday, after a run of 23 days, realizing the handsome sum of $4,250.05. Guess the mines 'round here are falling.

ADDRESS.—We have before us the address of the Hon. John Swett, Superintendent of Public Instruction, delivered at the State Teachers Institute held in San Francisco, May 27, 1867. It is an admirable exposition of the condition of our Public Schools. It shows also the progress made within the past four years. In 1863 we expended less than half a million dollars a year for public schools; in 1867 nearly a million. Then we paid for teachers' salaries $328, now $550, an increase of 68 per cent. while the number of teachers has increased 31 per cent. And these are only a sample of the wonders accomplished. We hope all will read the address, and Swett be re-elected.

MORE BLOOD.—By our dispatches from the East it will be seen that the Mobile riot was a well arranged attempt to assassinate Hon. W. D. Kelley and other Union men, almost equal in cool ferocity to the New Orleans affair. Parties fully armed were posted in windows and on house-tops all around the place of meeting, and at the command of the leader they opened in force upon the speaker and others upon the stand. Reconstruction is going on well, Semmes keeps up his reputation as a pirate and has infused his spirit into a large crew. How long must free speech and free rights be met by foullest murder?

MAN AND WIFE ONE.—Professor Lewis has settled the question for married women. He says:

"It is not inconsistent with the oneness of the marriage state that it should have two aspects—an inward and outward. In one of these the idea may be utterly desecrated; whilst it still holds, and the parties should be held to it, in the other—that is, the outward relation. When, therefore, they claim a separate political action, society may justly send them back to their agreement, as made with society itself and with each other. They have solemnly covenanted to be one—one in all things domestic—one especially in all things public. Being one they are not entitled to two votes, whether simply double or opposing each other. The case of unmarried women, whether widows or maidens, stands by itself; but in regard to those who have entered into the marriage unity the answer is conclusive. They cannot be known as two either at home or abroad. They have merged their separate individuality. They should not sue each other; they should not vote against each other. All of these acts are equally at war with the marriage idea, and when they are permitted, marriage ends."

MEADOW LAKE.—After an absence of a week in this auriferous district, we are again at home. The place is at present burdened with some six or eight feet of snow, which, however, is being rapidly carried away by the warm rays of a spring sun; some estimating the daily decline or melting at from four to six inches. Many buildings in the district have been crushed by the weight of the snow during the winter, among them the Enterprise mill. This mill never answered the purpose, we believe, for which it was erected, and the stockholders will doubtless consider it rather fortunate that otherwise, that the elements have placed it beyond a possibility of becoming a further burden. A little further on, towards Meadow Lake, we passed the Warren House, erected last year at considerable expense by the owner, whose name it bears, as a public house; he doubtless, basing his calculations upon supposed richness of the mines in that vicinity, impoverished himself in the erection of this hotel that is now a mass of ruins and he disappointed wanderer. Alas, for the uncertainty of all human calculations. The barn, built opposite the house and in which used to neigh the fiery steeds of weary travelers, is no longer to be recognized, save by the words "Livery Stable," which peep out about two feet from the snow, upon the front wall, the balance of the building being a total wreck. Passing on with subdued feelings and ruminating upon the disappointed hopes of the many whose hearts beat high with bright anticipations of a prosperous future but a short time ago, we came to the town of Mendoza, a place of about sixty houses, where every business known to an interior town "flourished for a day." No sign of human habitation is left, and the buildings generally have shared the fate of its sister town—crushed. On we go, over the "snow, the beautiful snow," and arrive at the capital of the district.

Here, as at other places along the route, the traveler sees evidences of the terrible winter just passed; many houses that had been vacated during the winter have succumbed to the immense weight of the continual fall of snow and "gone down." But this is by no means the case generally with the houses in the town, many were compelled to dig shafts from the top of the snow to their upper windows immediately after the many storms during the winter. Those who remained there and are interested in the development of the mineral resources of the district express themselves as highly gratified with the results of their energy and perseverance during the past season in the claims that have been worked, and say that the prospects are infinitely better now than ever before; nor do they ask an acquiescence in their opinions as to the value of their mines without good reasons, such as no one, who is at all acquainted with quartz mining, will hesitate in according, when they take the trouble to examine for themselves. Several claims have been worked during the winter, notwithstanding the unprecedented fall of snow at that place, with results that are gratifying to the fullest extent to those interested. Among others, we visited the CALIFORNIA. This company own several ledges, and have erected a mill, eight stamps, to crush their rock; the ledge upon which the company commenced work is the Knickerbocker. Work was commenced on this ledge last summer and fall, but by some means the crushings failed to produce that confidence in the value of the mine that they anticipated and work was for a time stopped, the stock went down and many thought the enterprise a failure. A new board of trustees, however, was elected consisting of practical business men who went to work developing the mine, not in order to sell out but to reap the fruits of their own labor and thriftiness. They have run their shaft down a distance of one hundred feet, with three apartments, each of which is five by five feet, in the clear, it is substantially cribbed from top to bottom, where they have a tunnel to the distance of twenty feet, at present, which is seven feet high and the same in width. They are on the ledge which is, at the point of striking it, seven feet wide, and are taking out quantities of ore that they are satisfied will pay well. They have not crushed any during the winter, but contented themselves with making preparations for continued and permanent operations hereafter. The cost of running this shaft and tunnel has been $20,000. They are satisfied from indications that they have struck a chimney in their tunnel which they consider of unusual richness in free gold. The rock already taken out is full of sulphurets, and judges say can be made to pay largely. The mill will be thoroughly repaired and renovated, and roasting works are to be put up in connection with the mill which will enable them to save all the gold contained in the sulphurets and of course increase, to a very great extent, the receipts from the mine. On Monday last the workmen struck a vein of copper in the mine which is considered by experienced miners almost a sure indication of good pay rock. The mill will start crushing about the middle of next month, and we shall look anxiously to hear of the deserved success of those interested in the mine. We would here return our thanks to C. B. Higgins, Esq., for the courtesy extended in accompanying us to the mine and for information given in the operations. In our next we will endeavor to tell what we saw on a visit to the Molawak and Montreal mine, the works and prospects.

BY OVERLAND TELEGRAPH. SPECIAL TO THE SEMI-WEEKLY ENQUIRER

New York, May 29.—F. Smith, U. S. Interpreter among the Camanches arrived to-day and reports 1200 Indians on the war path and about 2,000 moving towards Fort Belknap on the Santa Fe trail, the rest are at Fort Arbuckle.

New York, May 29.—The match between Ethan Allen and his running mate, was won by the former in the unprecedented time of 2:19. The Herald's Vera Cruz correspondent of the 18th says the warm weather has set in. The desert among the troops are steadily increasing. The Liberales ironclad man-of-war is expected daily in front of the city. A Spanish brig arrived with 8,000 pounds of powder. Provisions are plentiful. President Roberts of the Fenian Brotherhood sails for Europe on Saturday.

The Times understands that the Monadnock had been bought by France for $250,000. The Life Saving Commission is in session—various committees made reports on the subject, recommending several intentions to the Secretary of the Treasury. St. Louis reports say several men left for Hay's Kansas, last week and five of them were killed and scalped by the Indians.

Eastern capitalists have made a proposition to the citizens of St. Joseph to the effect that if they will furnish five hundred thousand dollars they will build the St. Joseph and Council Bluffs railroad by the first of January. It is thought the proposition will be accepted. New York, May 29.—The Herald's London special bearing date of last night says: In the Commons at an early hour after an exciting debate the question of borough franchise and the rights embodied in the reform bill were settled on the basis of the franchise question. The bill proposed plan formerly proposed was practically abolished. As the measure now stands the tenant in the borough is to pay a tax rate personally, instead of through his landlord, and so secure the right of voting. In the matter of the franchise question in the country it has been allowed that the settled occupants of lands or tenements worth £15 shall have the right of voting when duly registered. The government first proposed that the value of lands and tenements should be £15, the Liberales, in opposition, wanted it fixed at £10, and they compromised. The result is a gain to the people. Influential deputations with petitions numerously signed asking for mercy for the Fenian Convicts are arriving in Dublin. Cardinal Paul Cullen called on the Lord Lieutenant advising that all the lives of the condemned be spared; and prayers were offered for the same purpose. A deputation of a member of the Commons, Council with the Mayor of Dublin at their head, called upon the Queen to present a petition asking for mercy, and have been so influential as to turn the determination of the Derby Government in the house. They presented the recommendation to the Queen who, after an anxious consideration assented to it. The announcement of the result was received in both houses of Parliament with so cheering a response that the only reason for giving away was that overwhelming testimony of the Irish people that it would not be policy to let the law take its course.

L. P. Upson, Surveyor General of California received a telegram from Washington yesterday informing him of his appointment as Surveyor General of Arizona. The chairman of the Union County Committee has called a meeting of the Committee for this evening for the purpose of changing the test of voters at the Primary Election and extending the hours of holding the same, and to furnish count-voters at the polls. The People's Committee met last night and selected thirty-eight delegates for the County Convention whose names will be made public as soon as it is known they will act. The Call says the platform that was adopted by the anti-Coolie association completely extinguished the hopes of the Chinese and entirely repudiated his Chinese brotherhood and cheap labor meeting. LETTER FROM COLFAX.

COLFAX, May 30th, 1867.

EDITOR ENQUIRER:—Has it ever occurred to you that while we are very busy attending to the interesting questions which shall be Sheriff or Treasurer of old Placer, we are leaving to the Pacific Railroad Company to pick out our Senator and Assemblymen for the benefit of John Conness? Placer county has too big a stake in defeating the grasping aims of that corporation which wants to continue its attorney at Washington, to allow this matter to go by default. Are our mining interests and our duties to go into the selfish grasp of these men; or are we to see that some one whom that railroad cannot buy is sent to Washington to discharge the great duties of Senator? Every square mile that the Railroad Company gets title to which contains mineral lands they will, by and by, get the possession of; and who will see that miners have a fair show? Not Conness, for he doubled the grant of land to the Company; not he, for he contemptuously disregarded the memorial of the Legislature and that of the State Miners' Convention; both of which were fought by the Railroad Company. What is the opinion of C. A. Tweed about the Senatorial question? They want to go to the Legislature. This county must express its opinion on the question through its representatives; and how can it do so if it does not take care that those representatives sympathize with its views on the question. Some Congressional legislation is needed to defend the miners. On that class of men depend the prosperity of the State. We do not want a mammoth monopoly of mining lands. We don't want our placer claims, our blue lead, our quartz claims, taken away in actions of ejectment by the Railroad Company when they get title, and have pushed their road to the State line. How can we prevent this? Not by sending men to the Legislature to play into the hands of the Company! Congress should pass a law providing that in all suits for possession brought by any railroad company for any public lands wherein a reservation is made to the Government of mineral lands, the miners who are in occupation of the same under mining laws and customs, shall have a right to set up in defense of such action, their said possessory and valid title to the land is more valuable for mineral than for agricultural purposes; and on its being shown in the trial that the land in question is mineral, the grant to the land shall be void. This would enable the miners to step into the shoes of the Government and protect their claims. Without this they are, and will be, treated by the courts as mere trespassers, liable to be turned out as soon as the Railroad Company get its patents.

Can we expect any such legislation as this from John Conness, or any one under the influence of the Railroad Company, or elected by its money? Certainly not. Then let the miners think of this matter, and send no man to the Legislature who will not vote for a man who will give them fair play.

The gross receipts of the Young Ladies' Festival in aid of the Union church amounted to one hundred and fifty-one dollars.
